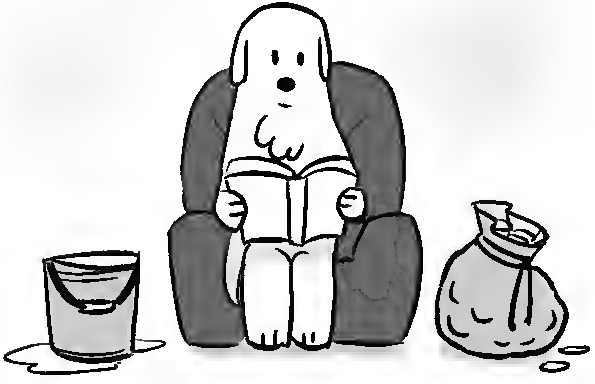
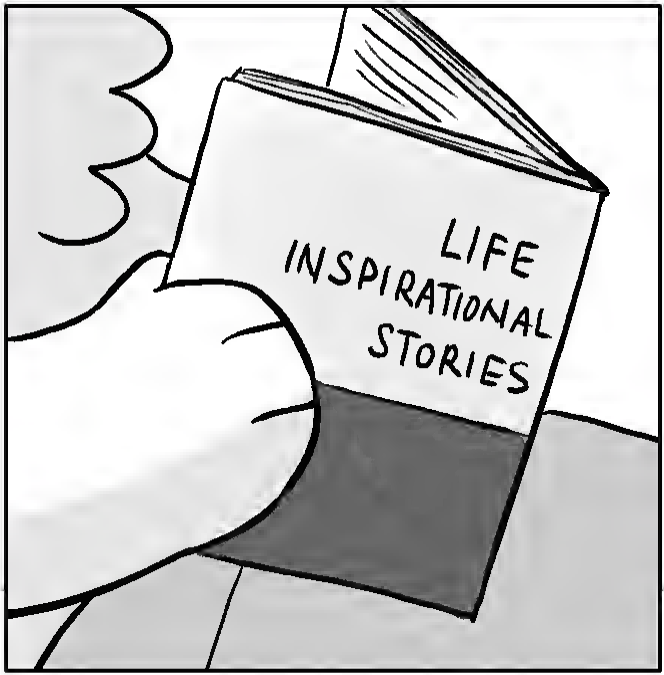
ROAR STREET JOURNAL

A Tale of Happiness





LIFE
INSPIRATIONAL STORIES

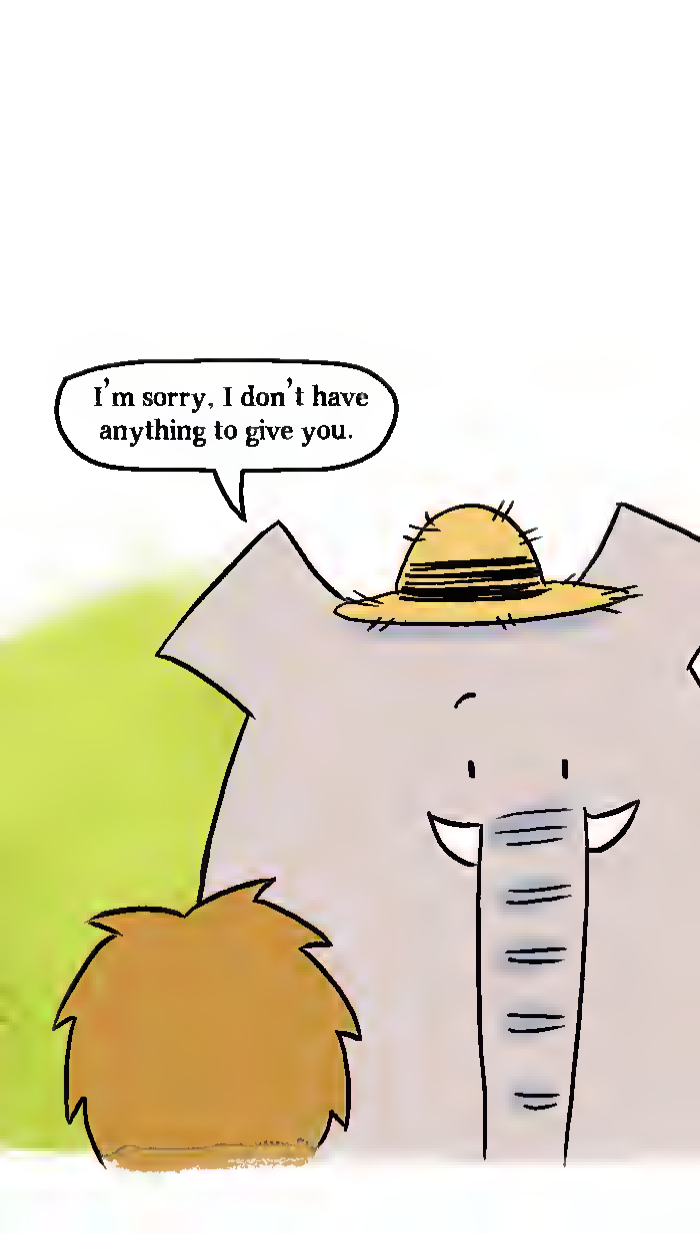
A rich animal was walking with a wise animal.

The rich animal was carrying a bag of gold coins and kept complaining.

What is your trouble, fellow animal?
I'm not happy.

Why? Don't you have a lot of wealth already?

Yeah... but If someone can give me one more bag of gold coins, I'd be happier!



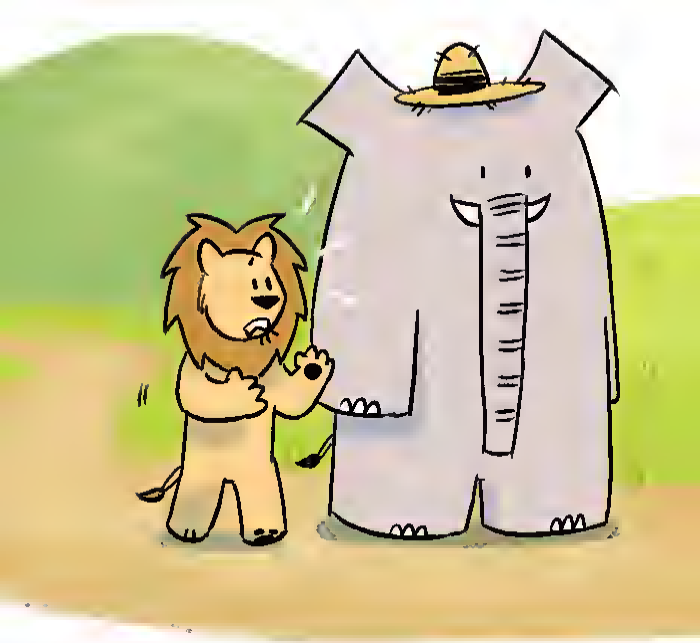
I'm sorry, I don't have anything to give you.

They came to rest under a tree and took a nap.

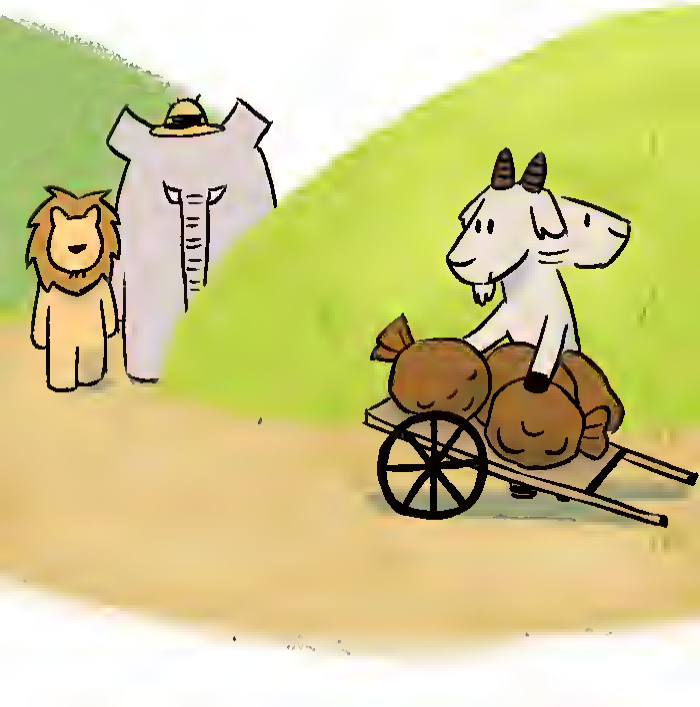
When they woke, the rich animal's bag went missing.

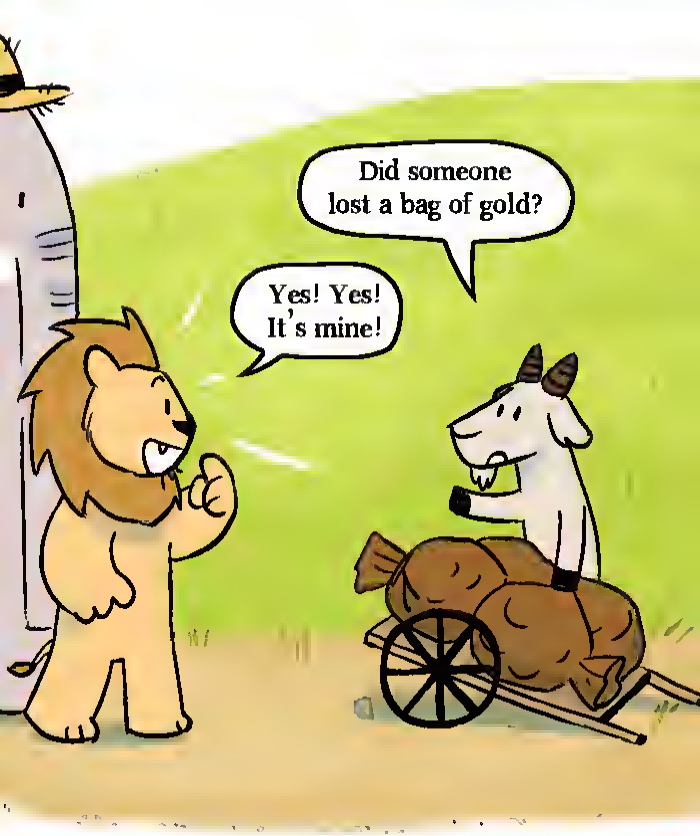
Oh no! My gold!
It's all gone!
Who stole it?

The rich animal was very unhappy.



After a while, they met a farmer on the road.





Did someone lost a bag of gold?
Yes! Yes! It's mine!

My gold coins!
They are still here!
I'm so sorry sir,
I thought it's my potatoes and took it...

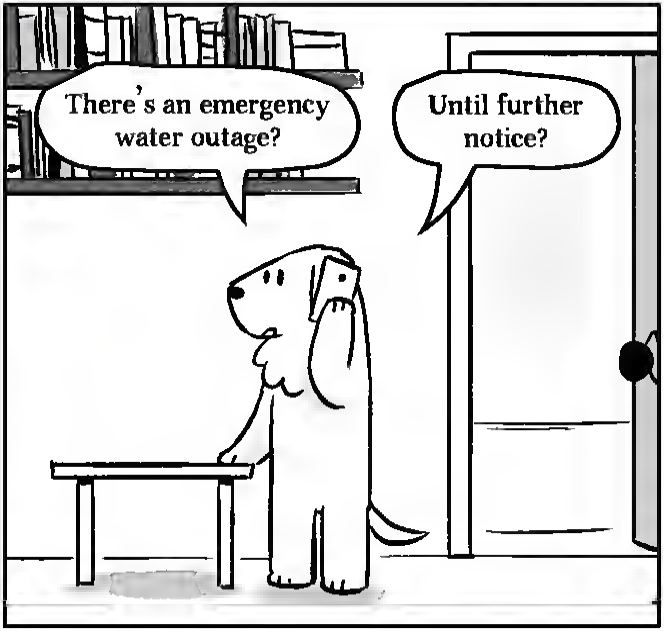
How do you feel now?
I'm so happy! I found my gold again!

That's an inspiring story.
The rich animal felt happy even though he didn't gain anything.

Let's have a nice hot shower before bed.

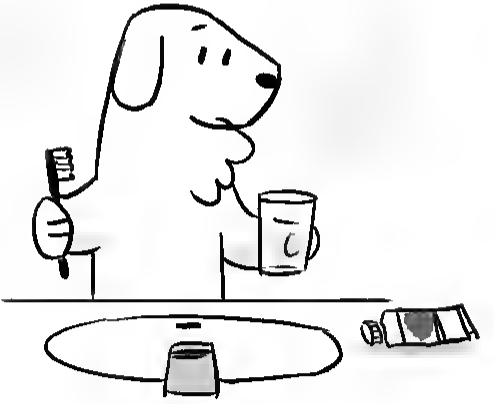
No water?



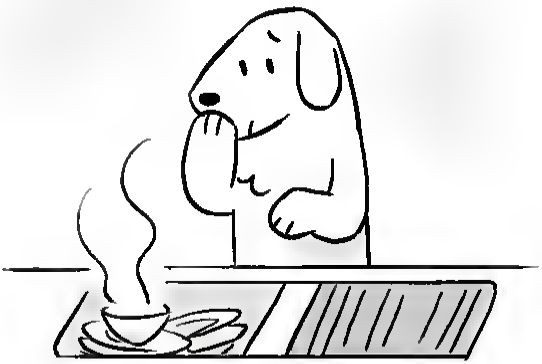
There's an emergency water outage?
Until further notice?

Can't shower.

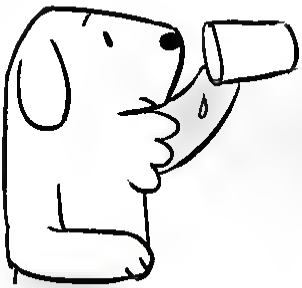
Can't brush teeth.



Can't wash dishes.



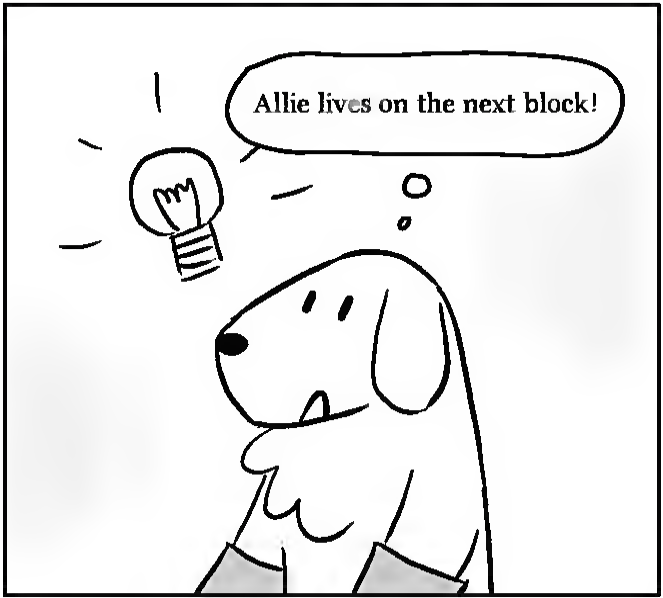
No water to drink.



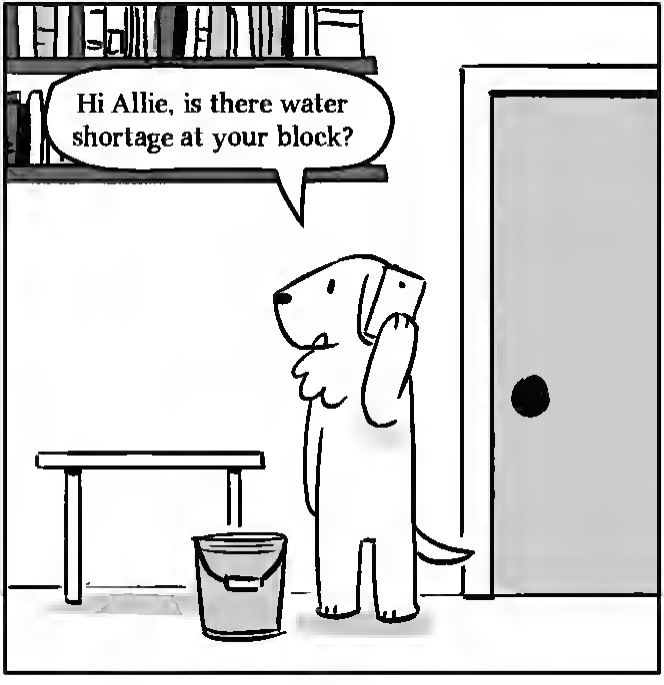
We usually take the things we have for granted, until we lost it one day...
22B

Only a small bucket after a long wait, that's not enough.
22B
22C

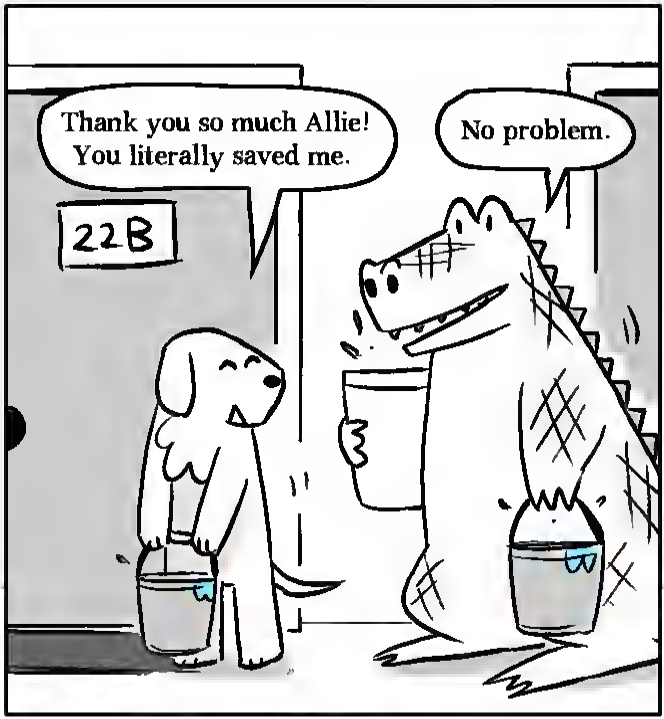
This is troublesome but I can still manage.
Can't believe how much water I used and wasted everyday.
Where else can I fetch water?



Allie lives on the next block!



Hi Allie, is there water shortage at your block?



Next morning

Shaaa!

ROAR STREET JOURNAL

Animals Around The World
#68

PotatoQueen
I'm from Lichtenstein and I'm not sure if we even have a national animal but we do have a lot of cool bats! Thx for making my day Bonnie.

Readers from Lichtenstein!

Lichtenstein's national animal is Kestrel. Kestrels have excellent eyesight to spot small preys from far away. They can also see near ultraviolet light to detect the urine trails of burrowing rodents.